

Millennium Luxury Coaches unveils groundbreaking 360° camera technology

New seamlessly integrated feature provides more safety and security and will be available standard on all 2019 models

Sanford, Florida – DATE –Millennium Luxury Coaches is proud to announce that it will be including the Brigade Backeye@360 camera system in all 2019 luxury coach models, in coordination with vehicle safety pioneer Brigade Electronics Group. Using four ultra wide-angle cameras, the Backeye@360 splices four video streams together seamlessly for a safer and better driving experience.

This advanced technology is an evolved multi-camera monitor system designed to make low-speed maneuvering as safe and simple as possible. Four ultra wide-angle cameras, each with a viewing angle over 180°, are high-mounted to the front, rear and each side of a Millennium Luxury Coach. The live images, covering all four sides of the vehicle, are instantly processed, combined, and merged together simultaneously. The driver sees a single, smooth, real-time video from a bird's eye perspective, providing an unobstructed, perfect view of all four sides.

“Here at Millennium Luxury Coaches, we pay close attention to the daily challenges our drivers face. After looking at trends in the luxury automobile industry, and as we focus on the future, it only made sense to offer this added safety feature to our customers,” said Nelson Figueroa, President and Founder of Millennium Luxury Coaches.

Millennium Luxury Coach customers will be able to access this technology through a center column mounted monitor that provides unobstructed viewing without requiring the driver to look away from the road. Additionally, the on-board digital video recorder will store the video for later review in the case of any incidents. Finally, a driver will be able to stream a 360° view of the vehicle to a handheld device anywhere, providing a level of safety and security that was previously unheard of. I-Secure, the existing camera system that integrates cameras and handheld device technology to superb effect and was introduced by Millennium in 2010, will remain on-board and will be supplemented by the addition of the Backeye@360 system.
